"We are extremely proud of the success of this event and of the level of professionals who have come to this edition, proving that the Salone del Mobile is a global benchmark. A unique event, in which business and culture become the virtual model for an Italy that functions, where the industrial system and the institutions are working in sync towards a common goal", said President of the Salone del Mobile Claudio Luffi. "Over the last few days we have witnessed the very best creativity, products and capacity for innovation and narration – showcased by displays with all the evocative power and enchantment of the very best theatrical sets. This means that we are now ready to start thinking about the next edition, with even greater commitment to maintaining our acknowledged leadership of identity and values and responding to business and market demands.

A SLICE OF NYC

New York architect David Rockwell and his studio the Rockwell Group has teamed up with Surface magazine to celebrate its 25th anniversary with The Diner, a celebration of American design, presented as an unforgettable contemporary interpretation of the archetypal roadside restaurant. The installation, which is being staged in one of the cavernous vaults under the famous Milano Centrale Train station as part of Ventura Centrale by Ventura Projects, will immerse visitors in four distinct environments. This installation is not to be missed!

A SPLENDID WORLD

Artematto who is the fairest of them all! Well of course its Snow White. Launching at Salone, the collection for Scarlet Splendour. For their first collab they showcase some beautiful design crafted with the softest sheepskin leather and held by golden frames. HANG LOOSE!

Don't know about you but I loathe seeing coats bunched up and hanging messily on coat hooks near the door. But perhaps this spring we have a surprisingly beautiful solution. Feel light as a butterfly while welcoming your guests to undress (erm, within reason) with the new Coat Hanger by Artemest. Absolutely gorgeous!
